

Authors Biography

Global South Review

Vol. 1, No.1, Agustus 2019

Marwa is an MSc student in Environment and Sustainable Development program at University College London, UK. She was part of Chevening network, UK sponsored international scholarship scheme. Her academic interest surrounds on global water development, urban water inequality, and alternative water service governance for southern cities. She has recently published work titled “Water Justice Will Not Be Televised: Moral Advocacy and the Struggle for Transformative Remunicipalisation in Jakarta” which was published in Water Alternatives. Currently, she becomes interested in gender and identity politics in water governance as she is working on a research of water service governance for the urban poor in informal settlements with a case Study of Penjaringan, Jakarta, Indonesia. She can be reached through her email marwasemesta@gmail.com

Tania Delavita Malik is an MSc candidate in Political Economy of Late Development at London School of Economics and Political Science, for which she received a Chevening scholarship. Her dissertation assesses the role of Intellectual Property Rights (IPRs) under Soeharto’s leadership, when Indonesia was considered an East Asia Miracle by the World Bank. Prior to her master’s study, she worked as a researcher at Forbil Institute, and earned her bachelor’s degree in international Relations with a Cum Laude predicate from Universitas Gadjah Mada. She is interested in trade and development issues, more specifically on IPRs, having published over twenty literatures on these topics. She can be reached through her email taniadelavita@gmail.com

Nabilah Nur Abiyanti is doing master’s study in Peace and Conflict Studies at the University of Oslo. Currently planning to write master’s thesis on peacebuilding measures post-peace agreement in Aceh, Indonesia. The research will primarily focus on assessing the effectiveness of political power-sharing mechanisms (dispersive, constraining and inclusive) as one of the proposed solutions for peacebuilding. She can be reached through her email nabilaha@student.sv.uio.no

Yulida Nuraini Santoso is a Chevening scholar currently working for the political cooperation division of the ASEAN Secretariat. Having graduated from Universitas Gadjah Mada in 2013, the author went on to study International Public Policy at the University College London (UCL) in 2014. Her publications and areas of interest include upstream sector of oil and gas in Indonesia, transparency of extractive industries, regionalism, transnationalism, and political cooperation among ASEAN Member States. She can be reached through her email yulidanuraini@gmail.com

Dewangga Dura Dematar graduated from International Relations of Gadjah Mada University and begin his early career as Staff to Special Adviser to the Chief of Staff in the Executive of Office of President. Currently he manages nation-wide social movement named Jelajah Bineka concerning in religious tolerance and freedom of religion and believe. He’s an MPA Candidate in London School of Economics, UK. He can be reached through his email dewanggaduradematar@gmail.com.